Hear Her Mournful Cry

Emily Rosenstein

To be brought into this world is a gift within itself,
So then why do people choose to challenge their health?
It is so hard to believe, so difficult to think true,
That the nurturing bosom of a mother is yet so deadly, too.
Some people have control of whether a disease might invade,
But when breast cancer is diagnosed it is not from a wrong choice made.
A woman's sense of self-esteem and beauty swiftly vanishes by,
Her completeness of body lost, hear her mournful cry.
Not the same person or normal as before,
Always treated like a disease and dependent furthermore.
The one discovered ill is not the only one in pain,
For the people who surround her have concern somewhat the same.
Why do some women make the choice to give up at the start?
Positive thinking is hard, but it can be found within one's heart.
There are some who spend their days just waiting for the next,
But not to know which one is last makes each day the very best.
